PRACTICE PROJECT

Inbox system for a busy coach

PROBLEM

A coach had 2,000+ unread emails. Client messages were getting lost between newsletters and receipts.

WHAT I DID

- Created 5 labels: Clients, Leads, Billing, Newsletters, Personal
- Set up filters so emails sort themselves
- Wrote 4 reply templates for common questions

TOOLS

Gmail labels and filters, Google Docs for templates, Loom for a 2-minute walkthrough.

Result: inbox sorted automatically, client emails in one place, replies done in minutes. (Practice project made with a sample inbox, not a real client.)

BEFORE & AFTER

Cleaning a messy lead list in Google Sheets

BEFORE

Name	Email	Phone
john SMITH	John@Example.com	(555)1234567
John Smith	john@example.com	555-123-4567
ana reyes	ana@example	5559876543

AFTER

Name	Email	Phone
John Smith	john@example.com	+1 555 123 4567
Ana Reyes	needs checking	+1 555 987 6543

What I did: PROPER() for names, TRIM() and LOWER() for emails, one phone format, removed duplicates and flagged invalid emails. Result: 1,000 rows down to 870 clean, unique leads.

MOCK CLIENT PROJECT

30-day content calendar for a local café

The plan

- 3 posts a week for 4 weeks
- Mix: menu, behind the scenes, promos
- Captions with a clear call to action

The designs

- 12 Canva posts in the café's colors
- 1 reusable template for weekly promos
- Story versions for Instagram

The tracker

- Google Sheet: date, post type, caption, status
- Shared with the "client" for approval

Labelled clearly as a mock project for a fictional café, so clients see the skill without any fake claims.
